No Tramps in the South.

The tramps do not take kindly to the not addicted to showing mendicants fa yors. This, probably, is one reason why so few tramps are to be found in the south. Another reason is that the south does not afford the same advantages for plunder and free living that are to be found in the north. There are no orchards and poultry roosts to offer an easy dumer to the wayfurer who prefers pilicing to working There was an irruption of tramps into Louis tana last winter during the sugar mak ing season. They pretended to be in scarch of work, but when furnished with employment they soon showed that they were not fascingted with it. They wan dered from one plantation to another, and became as much disgusted with the country as it was with them. The ne groes showed them no favor, and the planters closed their doors against them They were found to be an undesirable recession to the population, and the New Orleans Democrat advises that if there is more cotton produced thin can be picked by our own people, it is better to let it rot away than bring down this rleatation of tramps upon us, under the delumon that they will do any work.
